

CAMERON HOST TO ARMY UNITS

Thomas Jefferson's dominating trait was his love of liberty, and it was as a champion of human freedom that he desired to be known to posterity. This was illustrated by his epitaph, written by himself for inscription upon his tomb:

"Here is buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence; and of the statutes of Virginia for religious freedom; and father of the University of Virginia."

No reference is made to his services as governor of Virginia, member of Congress, minister to France, secretary of state, vice president and twice president of the United States. In his own estimation his services in the cause of liberty stood above all these.

Freedom of government, freedom of education were the paramount objectives of his life, as epitomized in his epitaph. Born an aristocrat, Thomas Jefferson became the ardent defender of the masses and one of the greatest exponents of human liberty the world has ever known.

Most high school graduates turned loose upon the world this year, and every year, look upon life with minds befogged with superstition, according to Dr. H. J. Arnold, eminent psychologist of Wittenberg College, who recently enumerated a few of the silly beliefs he found prevalent among them.

Upon asking freshmen entering psychology classes last year to submit to examinations on their belief and disbeliefs, he discovered that 50 percent of more than 200 believed that women have powers of intuition with which men are not equipped, that expectant mothers can mark their unborn by frightening experiences, that beavers know when to prepare for a long, cold winter, that red makes a bull wild, that chess develops powers of concentration.

Nearly half of them believed that dogs howling foretold death, that long slender hands indicate an artistic nature, that civilization is almost entirely a product of the white race, and that if you stare long enough at a person's back you will force him to turn around.

As many as 25 percent still cling to the idea that a receding or streamlined chin denotes lack of will power, that silent men are deep thinkers, that fat ones are always good-natured and that you can read character by bumps on the head, or by depressions in the skull.

And every one of the ideas mentioned are without the slightest foundation in fact. All are sheer nonsense.

Following the use of flags of various designs by the several American colonies during the early years of the Revolution, an act was passed by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, which provided as follows:

"That the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes of alternating red and white, and that the union be thirteen stars, white, on a blue field, representing a new constellation."

In the first flag the thirteen stars were arranged in a circle, and after the admission of Vermont and Kentucky to statehood the number of stars and stripes was each increased to fifteen.

It became evident that with the admission of more states the number of additional stripes necessary to represent them would make the flag unwieldy, so in 1818 the present arrangement of thirteen stripes, representing the original colonies, and a star for each state was adopted.

In commemoration of the adoption of the flag by Congress in 1777, June 14, is celebrated throughout the nation as Flag Day, a fitting occasion. (Turn to page 7)

MINISTER CONFESSES FRAUD IN INJURY PROBE

Confessing that he had deliberately placed his left arm across the rail and let the wheels of a speeding train cut off the limb in order to collect $500 in accident insurance, Rev. J. L. McRea of Rockdale, is in the Milam county jail waiting action of the grand jury.

The confession was made on the eve of trial of a suit he had asked his attorney, E. A. Camp of Rockdale, to bring against the Southern Pacific for $15,000 damages. McRea is said to have told a Rockdale minister of his false claim and was prevailed upon to give details to the Criminal District Attorney.

After he had told the story of how he had falsified to obtain the money, he was placed in jail here. Just before officers left he asked them to stay for prayer and they consented. McRea held services in the jail Sunday.

He had harbored the falsehood for 9 months. In the meantime he had obtained payment from the Cameron Life Insurance Company and made all arrangements for trial of the suit against the railroad company.

On September 17, 1936 he was brought to Cameron Hospital, bruised and beaten, with his left arm off below the elbow. Shortly after three young men were arrested and were all but indicted for the attack McRea said had been made on him.

From his hospital bed he told with great piety, a false story of an attack by three drunk men he could not identify.

He said they overtook him on the highway, attacked and beat him and laid him across the track unconscious. After the train passed he said he regained his senses and went to a nearby filling station for aid. So well did he plan the fraud that in his first statement he said he waved his hand for the train to stop as he lay in a half stupor across the rails.

Confession
My name is J. L. McRea. I am 47 years old. I live in Rockdale, Milam County, Texas.

I have been in financial difficulties for some two or three years. Last August I had one note that would be due on September 15th, 1936. I worried considerably over this note and didn't know how I was going to pay it. I thought of securing a life and accident insurance policy. I hunted Mr. Walter Smith of Rockdale, Texas, up and talked to him relative to taking out a life and accident insurance policy with the company he represented. I went to Mr. Smith and told him I wanted to buy a life and accident policy. Mr. Smith wrote me a Criminal District Attorney Emory B. Camp and Sheriff Kennedy went into action immediately and had within a short time three young men under arrest. Indictments failed for lack of evidence. McRea says he is ready to be punished for his crime in the following confession:

Romeo and Juliet, Great Film of Shakespeare Story Comes to Cameron June 24th and 25th

"Romeo and Juliet" offers the best evidence that Shakespeare never missed the opportunity to stage a good fight. His greatest romance opens with a quarrel between the embittered houses of Montague and Capulet that embroils the entire city of Verona.

Shakespeare has described the hatred existing between the families of Romeo and Juliet with such vividness that six months were required to prepare for the filming scenes in the dramatic dueling scenes in the production of the classic, which stars Norma Shearer and Leslie Howard as the immortal lovers, and opens June 24 at the Cameron Theatre.

HOG AND HOMINY

(Editor's note: This article is published as a news item and represents the personal views of Mr. Ferguson only.)

My grandson now on a tour with his parents around the world writes me from China that he saw two able bodied Chinamen with a wooden yoke around their necks hitched to a plow which was guided by another grown Chinaman. He says this wooden plow was of the same type that has been used over two thousand years. These three men make their living on an acre of ground, and while they are not fully fed, yet they are vigorous and do not starve unless it comes drouth or flood.

While we can not understand how the Chinaman can survive this condition, yet the fact that he does survive, should cause us to learn how to overcome both the high cost of living as well as the cost of high living.

I believe it was that great divine Spurgeon that said that we will always get over the ditch if we jump well and never go hungry if we keep a garden and a pig.

The cow; the sow and the hen idea seems to be a neglected thought and our failure to heed its possibilities may cause us some degree of disappointment in solving the problem of the high cost of living. Now that the rains have come in most parts of Texas, it is very essential that we give the soil its full chance to produce at least a full stomach existence.

Of course, I am speaking mainly of our farming population. The difficulty of feeding the thousands that just will continue to flock to the cities and towns is another cross word puzzle that will have to be solved in some serious way by itself. If the farmers can devise some plan to feed themselves and have some surplus to sell the city folk, then we have laid the foundation to a sound civilization. But the farmer must keep the balance of trade in his favor or our economic condition will grow worse.

The trouble now is that the farmer is not living at home. Some of them only keep a sow, some only a cow, others only a hen, but few keep all three. And yet, they are in the reach of nearly every family. How independent people would be if they would. Let us forget for the moment big farming and mass production by machinery and expensive equipment and see what everybody can do to make full stomach living.

The first installment on the cheapest automobile will not average over $100. With this sum a well bred brood sow (gilt) can be bought for $15. Two one-gallon and a half cows can be bought for $80 and 112 good hens and a rooster can be bought for $5—total $100. Now the farmer is in business with a sow, cow and a hen. Suppose it is a tenant who could only rent 20 acres of land. Let us see what can be produced.

With 12 acres in cotton, three bales can be made, now worth $160—tenant's part $120, and the seed less ginning $20 more, or feed to cows. The cows will produce 1 1-2 pounds of butter a day, 1-4 pound for home consumption and one pound for sale or trade to the merchant, 300 pounds a year at 20 cents a pound, or $60. Buttermilk or skim to be fed to chickens and pigs.

The brood sow will produce an average of 8 healthy pigs a year which can be made to weigh 300 pounds each, or 2,000 pounds of cured meat. One thousand pounds is more than the average family of five can eat a year, and that other thousand pounds can be sold to the merchant or personal customer for $200. It will take 12 bushels of corn to produce the 300 pound hog—or 100 bushels. Twenty-five bushels to the acre will yield 200 bushels on 8 acres from which there is left 100 bushels to feed the 2 horse or mule team.

So the farmer will have a money crop sufficient to buy clothes, sugar and coffee, flour and tobacco and the payment on that durned automobile, and taxes.

Say brother, why not start a hog and hominy club in your neighborhood?

life insurance policy for $1,000 and providing for certain accident protection. Among other provisions in the policy I purchased from Mr. Smith was a provision that I would be paid $500 for the accidental loss of one of my arms. Mr. Smith wrote this policy for me, and on August 21, 1935, The Cameron Life Insurance Company issued said policy to me. This was policy No. B7207.

Makes Decision

After I had secured this policy of insurance I read it over carefully to see that it contained the accident provisions above referred to. I knew shortly after I received this policy that it would pay me $500 for the loss of my arm. I knew the policy had this provision in it before September 17, 1936.

On September 17, 1936, I had decided that I would cut my left arm off by permitting a train to run over it. I decided that this could best be done, and made to look like an accident on what is known as the Hicks' crossing on Highway No. 44 south of Rockdale, Texas. I knew that I had to make people think I had had an accident to be able to collect my insurance.

Drives to Tanglewood

On September 17, 1936, I left my home shortly after noon and came to Rockdale and stopped a few minutes. I then drove on to Tanglewood to visit in the home of Bob Phillips. I went to the Phillips home and visited all that afternoon. I ate supper with the Phillips family and left there at 5 minutes after 7 o'clock and was detained at Mr. Treadwell's store. Mr. Treadwell's son fixed a flat for me. This must have taken up at least 15 or 20 minutes of my time. I left Tanglewood and drove to the Hicks railroad crossing on the old State Highway No. 44. I got there just a few minutes before the night train came by. I stopped my car, a 1929 Ford car, on the east side of the railroad on the right hand side of the highway. I then got out of my car and cut my left arm with a razor blade from a safety razor. I cut my left arm about midway between my shoulder and elbow. I then cut my belt with the same razor blade.

Strikes Himself

I went to my car and took a screw then went in my car and took a crew driver out and hit myself on the forehead with the handle of my screw driver. I threw the razor blade and the screw driver out in the grass after inflicted these injuries on myself. I cut my arm and hit myself on the head to make everything appear that I had been attacked by someone and left on the railroad track. About the time I finished cutting and hitting myself I could see the headlight of the train. I went to the west side of the railroad track and laid down on my stomach on the end of the cross-ties, and just about the time the train approached I placed my left arm up on the rails. After the train went on by I got up and got in my car and drove my car to Mr. Sam Richards filling station on highway No. 44.

Goes to Rockdale

Mr. Richards was just closing his place for the night and I asked him to drive me to Rockdale, that I had been attacked by three men and left on a railroad crossing and had lost an arm. Mrs. Richards brought a cloth and wrapped my arm up and Mr. Richards drove me on to Rockdale, Texas, to the Quebe Drug Store, at Rockdale, Texas, I related the same story that I had told Mr. Richards. I told Mr. Colvin the constable of Rockdale that I had been attacked by three men and left on the railroad track and the train ran over my left arm and cut it off. Someone called for the ambulance to carry me to the Cameron Hospital. Phillips and Luckey ambulance carried me to Cameron to the Cameron Hospital. When I got to the hospital I found Dr. W. R. Newton Jr., and Emory B. Camp, Criminal District Attorney waiting for me. It told these two men in detail of being waylaid by three men in a car, knocked in the head and cut and bruised and left laying on the railroad track where the train ran over me and cut off my left arm. I told these men that I could not describe in detail the men, but that I fought with them and received the cuts and bruises while fighting them.

Talk to Officers

The next day after I was injured, I talked to a railroad officer, the Sheriff of Lee County; Mr. R. M. Kennedy, the sheriff of Milam County and several others. I told each of these men that I had been waylaid and attacked and left on the railroad track for the train to run over me.

When I planned to put my left arm under the train, I intended to collect on my accident insurance policy and to collect damages from the railroad company. I knew that if I could make my story stand up and get judgment I could force the railway to pay me damages. I put my arm under the train and let the train run over me for the purpose and with the intention of collecting from the Cameron Life Insurance Company and from the railroad company.

Asks for Insurance

Some few days after I was injured I made application to the Cameron Life Insurance Company for payment on my accident provision of my policy. On September 30, 1936, I requested Emory B. Camp to come to the Cameron Hospital and take my acknowledgement to a release to the company.

Mr. Camp complied with my request and on September 30, 1936, I signed and acknowledged before Mr. Camp a release from the Insurance Company in consideration of $500. I then asked Mr. Camp to take my check to town and cash it and pay a note I owed at the First National Bank, and to deposit the balance in the First National Bank in Cameron, Texas, to my credit. Mr. Camp did this for me. I have used the remainder of $500 I collected as I saw fit.

Sues Railroad

Some months after I received my injury I employed Mr. E. A. Camp of Rockdale, Texas, to bring suit for me against the railroad for the purpose of collecting damages. I told Mr. E. A. Camp the same story I had related to the officers, that I was waylaid and knocked unconscious and the train had run over my left arm. Mr. E. A. Camp acted in good faith in bringing this suit for me, and relied on the information I furnished him.

Confesses to Attorney

Some time ago, about two and a half weeks ago, I told Mr. E. A. Camp what I had done and he immediately withdrew the suit. Mr. Camp did not know that I had caused the injury to myself, until I told him.

I make this statement of my free will and same is made to clear my conscience, feeling in my heart that I should suffer the penalty of the law.

Witness my hand this 11th day of June, A. D. 1937.

ICERS OPEN LEAGUE RACE WITH VICTORY

The Cameron Icers opened their 1937 season at the Lawless Green field Sunday afternoon when they had for their first opponents the Waco Jax. Evidently the 13 was a lucky number for the Icers as they defeated the Jax 12 to 2.

The big bats of the Icers banged out a total of eighteen hits of which five were double and one triple.

Manager Lawrence announces that he is booking the toughest opponents he can and that the fans of Cameron and vicinity are due to see some excellent games in the future.

Noted Old Frontier Texas Ranger Dead

Death in Temple Saturday ended the career of one of Texas' most colorful frontier peace officers. He was Captain James B. Gillett of the Texas Rangers.

Captain Gillett was 80 years old, an Indian fighter and was said to have tamed more bad men in his day than any other man who fought with the Rangers. He was author of several books on Texas Rangers.

Son of Major

Son of a major in the Texas revolution who served as adjutant general under Gen. Sam Houston, Gillett enlisted in the Texas rangers in 1875, when he was only 18. He served more than six years with the rangers and killed the notorious Dick Dublin after that desperado had terrorized West Texas citizens for many months.

Raided Mexico

Gillett once caused an international incident when he crossed the Rio Grande to bring back a Mexican murderer. He fought Comanches, Kiowas, Lipans and Apaches when the Indians were making their last stand against the encroaching tide of white settlement.

After leaving the ranger force Gillett was made marshal at El Paso and served successively as sheriff of Presidio county and as a deputy United States marshal. In later years he built up a comfortable fortune from the Barrel Springs cattle ranch in the Davis mountains near Marfa.

Ran Down Murderers

In 1881 when Abran and Enofre Baca murdered A. M. Conklin, editor of the Socorro (N. M.) Sun, Gillette was commissioned to capture them. Abran was arrested at the home of an uncle, an El Paso county judge, at Ysleta. Enofre fled across the Rio Grande into Mexico. When Mexican officials declined assistance in his capture, Gillett on his own initiative pursued the fugitive to Zaragosa, Mexico, kidnapped him and brought him back across the Rio Grande under fierce gunfire.

Official notes were exchanged between Washington, Austin and Mexico City over the incident, but Enofre Baca remained in the United States, was tried and convicted.

Relic Collection

Gillett's narrowest escape on numerous Indian raids was once when an Apache shot the brim from his ten-gallon hat. The aging fighter gathered in a one-room building on his Marfa ranch one of the most extensive collections of guns and historic Texas relics in the southwest.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at Marfa. He had lived at Apline and Marfa for 50 years and had recorded his experiences in a book, "Six Years a Texas Ranger."

His wife and son, M. E. Gillett of Marfa and two of his daughters, Mrs. Lee Wilson of Ozona and Mrs. Lee Evans of Albuquerque, N. M., were at his bedside when he died.

Miss Sulta Hendrick of Rogers and Elfus Batcheller of Mirando City were united in marriage here at the court house on Thursday afternoon by Justice of Peace Brashear. They will make their home in Mirando City, Webb County.

"WALLIS BLUE"—NEW FASHION SENSATION

Eyes That Changed Fate Of a Monarch Strike
Keynote For Gowns And Makeup

ANOTHER pair of eyes sways the destiny of a nation and thousands of women the world over wear a new color—"Wallis blue!" The new blue is an unusual, clear shade, exactly the color of Mrs. Warfield Simpson's famous eyes. Fashion authorities say it is excitingly different from other blues, and the House of Mainbocher, which created her trousseau, admitted dyeing the crepe four times for her wedding gown before they could match the shade.

In selecting a trousseau which is notable for its exquisite simplicity and chic, Mrs. Simpson chose blue as the keynote for the whole collection. In this respect she has followed the tradition of beautiful women through the centuries. Eyes are the most distinguished feature of all lovely women, since they are their one true personality color. Naturally, it follows that colors keyed to their eyes are those which enhance their beauty and charm.

A going away suit which is tailor-made with long skirt in light royal blue and blue and white printed blouse to match; flower-printed evening dress with tailored jacket—some in the new short length; a tea-gown of lamé and a striking coat of silk and satins are notable frocks in the wardrobe of the new Duchess. However, the wedding gown is the only garment in "Wallis blue." It was the Duke's particular choice that she be married in a gown which exactly matched the eyes that fascinated him. His American bride, with equal sentiment, wished to wear this specially created color for the first time on her wedding day.

The color choice of the future Duchess of Windsor has placed an accolade on a trend being followed more and more enthusiastically by smart French designers; namely, to emphasize a woman's natural coloring by keying her wardrobe to her eye-color.

Many American women prefer more color variety in their costumes. They will do well, however, to follow this bit of high-fashion wisdom in their makeup, since makeup is so fundamental a problem that, if it is right, a woman can wear any shade, no matter how subtle.

Eye types fall into four major groups—brown, blue, gray and hazel. By choosing makeup keyed to her eye-color a brown-eyed woman is assured of the warm tones that will prove most flattering to her type—a blue-eyed woman of the soft, cool pastel shades that are her true personality colors.

So, though this intriguing new "Wallis blue" is the special prerogative this summer of blue-eyed women, even those of us who are brown-eyed, if we are skillful enough in choosing our makeup, may accent our summer wardrobes with a dress or two in the color that matches the eyes of the most glamorous of modern women: the Duchess of Windsor!

during the evening by Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Perkins.

Popular dance music was furnished by an electric viotrola.

Goodhue Smith of Waco; Juanita Hill of Rosebud; Bernard Richardson of Russellville, Alabama; and Pete Fisher of Goose Creek were the out of town guests present for the occasion.

Our Town

casion upon which to renew allegiance to the flag and all for which it stands.

We hear a good deal about the necessity for special attention to dull children, and every aid which may be given. But a lot of bright ones need some thought and practical assistance too.

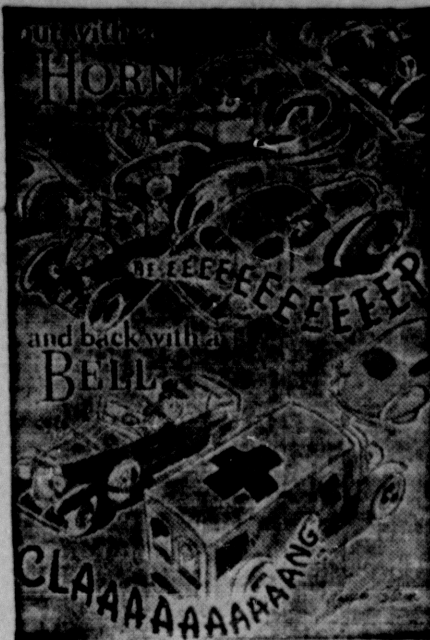

Education of the masses to a certain common level is to be desired, but unless the boy who shows exceptional talent can be given special opportunities to develop his talent powers, not only he, but the world at large, is the loser.

Thousands of mediocre boys go through college with little benefit to themselves or to society, while other thousands who have great gifts are denied the privilege, through lack of means.

That any boy with exceptional talent for creative work, scientific research or leadership should lack the opportunity to make the most of that talent is a tragedy. Upon such boys and their proper training depends the progress of the world. The same is true of especially talented girls.

When our civilization is a little farther advanced, means will be provided that our brightest minds shall have every opportunity for their highest development. Such means should be provided now.

Darn Tootin'!

(Travelers Safety Service)

Impatience never got anybody anywhere except into trouble.

Too many motorists expect an automobile horn to work miracles. They forget it was made for only one purpose: A horn should warn.

There is nothing quite so irritating as a horn-tooting motorist, with the possible exception of a mosquito in a sleeping porch. Both merit the same consideration.

An ancient Chinese philosopher said: "The big voice betokens the small mind." Five thousand years have not altered this truth, although it is expressed on our highways today with less grace and more profanity.

Impatient motorists should remember that a devil is recognized by his horns.

So, button, button, lay off the button!

IMPORTANT CHANGE IN FARM PROGRAM

There are two points of the 1937 Farm Program that should be carefully noted by farmers so their 1937 payments will not be reduced, says George Banzhaf, County Agent.

Attention is called to the fact that all Soil Depleting crops (except cotton) are charged against the General Soil Depleting Base. These crops include all harvested feed crops, truck, vegetables, commercial peas, commercial peanuts, etc. The total acreage of such crops must not exceed the General Soil Depleting Base or the Home Needs for the farm, whichever is the larger, without reducing payments to the farm. The Home Needs for the farm are determined by the number of families, number of people, and the number of workstock on the farm.

Attention has been called to the fact that some producers have signed Work Sheets for only a part of the farms owned or operated by them in 1937. The agent has been advised by the State Office that every farm either owned or operated by a producer or landlord must be covered by a Work Sheet before he will receive any 1937 payments whatever.

Police of Atlantic City, N. J., arrested William Shorts on a charge of "drunken riding." Patroleman Howard Lewis said he made the arrest after the bicycle Shorts was pedaling swerved and crashed into a parked automobile.

As a hobby, George Leibling of Pittsburg, Pa., collects locks of hair from everyone he meets.

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUI, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated.

Cardui, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.
